Venue: CEE@IBA, Karachi

OVERVIEW

The objective of this workshop is to enable professionals better comprehend generally the strategic elements while managing projects and specifically understanding the strategic implications of: establishing PMOs; gauging project management maturity; managing project risks.

This program focuses on making professionals capable of identifying strategic elements around managing projects along with evaluating solutions after synthesizing this elemental information.

This will help in decision making not only in projects but at the program and portfolio levels as well.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

Knowledge is developing in every field at an astounding pace and therefore managers and professionals need more food for thought while managing their challenging projects. This is especially crucial in emerging economies. Keeping this in view, this workshop was designed and built on the already laid-out background of project management methodology. By going through this workshop corporate-managers, principal-engineers and professionals better equip themselves with:

- Best Practices in Project Management
- Approaches of Project Stakeholder Management
- Elements for establishing effective PMOs
- Models for Gauging & improving Project Management Maturity of organizations/ departments
- Framework for managing project risks

SPECIAL FEATURES

This workshop is structured to involve professionals in a multiple-session, cross-functional, interactive workshop format in which they get substantial awareness about the contents and relevant issues. The major focus is on the theme of comprehending strategic implications of various project decisions, and to propose strategies that professionals can implement in their job-positions after completing this workshop. For this: case-studies, group exercises and simulations are the best tools which will be extensively relied upon.
